CLASSMATES :

In presenting the following report, I have to thank all who sent me the desired information, and at the same time to remind those who had not the time or inclination to furnish me with the necessary material, that by their neglect and indifference, the record is incomplete. The only classmate who has strayed from the flock is McCann, of whom no information can be obtained. With this exception, the addresses or whereabouts of all who graduated in 1874 are known, and I again earnestly request to be notified of any change of address, as applications are often made for addresses which I am unable to give. The invitation, extended to those who did not graduate with us, to keep up their connection with the Class, has been responded to by over half the number, and they are included in the following record. It is probable that all who value their connection with the Class have responded.

The accompanying record covers the time since graduation, as such a course is necessary in most cases in order to present an intelligent statement of the preparatory work for a profession or other occupation. Most of the Class are now settled, and such a repetition will be unnecessary in the future; but the reports already published must be preserved in order to make the future reports valuable. There are a few copies left of the first triennial report, which will be furnished upon application. The expense of these reports is very large, and so little new or interesting can be offered every three years, that I would suggest the propriety of discontinuing the triennial system. My own idea is, that if a report is published in 1884, the decennial of our graduation, and thereafter every five years, even the most enthusiastic of our number will be satisfied. Unless instructed to the contrary, this course will be adopted.

The income from the Class Fund is now more than sufficient to meet the ordinary expenses of the Class. There are weighty objections to the use of this margin for dinners, even if the amount were sufficient to pay for an annual dinner. The matter will be submitted to the Class on Commencement Day, for such action as they may deem desirable. For more detailed information as to the condition of the Class and College Funds, I refer you to the statements in the following pages.

During the last three years, two classmates have died, Aston and Knowles, and in this report will be found brief abstracts of their lives and tributes to their memory, prepared at my request by their intimate friends.

The statistics of marriages and births show a decided improvement over the previous record. Forty-three of the regular members of the Class are known to be married. Others may have neglected to inform me of the fact.

With renewed wishes for your success, I am very sincerely yours,

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR.,

Class Secretary.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 15, 1880.

RECORD OF THE CLASS.

JULY, 1874—JUNE, 1880.

JAMES LLOYD ABBOT. Soon after graduation went into his father's office (J. L. Abbot & Co., cotton brokers), in New York City, where he remained a few months; then went to Mobile, Ala., to learn the cotton business, and entered the office of Lyman C. Dorgan, Esq., cotton buyer; Sept. 1, 1878, entered into partnership with Mr. Dorgan, under the firm name of Dorgan & Abbot, and has since continued to do business and to reside in Mobile.

WILLIAM FITZHALE ABBOT. Has been engaged in teaching since graduation from September, 1874, to February, 1876, in G. W. C. Noble's private school for boys, in Boston, and after a few months' interval, in which he was obliged to give up work on account of sickness, he devoted himself to private pupils in Cambridge; in January, 1877, joined Sewall in the Indianapolis Classical School, opened by the latter in September, 1876, where he has since remained, but will finish his work in this school at the close of the present school year.

RICHARD MINOT ALLEN. Was a clerk in the Prescott Insurance Company, Boston, for over three years after graduation; from March 1, 1878, until April 1, 1879; was engaged in the grain commission business, in Kansas City, Mo., under the firm name of Bradenbaugh & Allen; then went to Wyoming Terr., to investigate the cattle business, and Sept. 1, 1879, became a member of the firm of Babbitt, Blanchard & Co., cattle-breeders, at Cheyenne, Wyoming Terr., where he has since remained; is engaged in an extensive business, having several thousand cattle in charge.

EUGENE NELSON ASTON, the son of Nelson and Mary (Bates) Aston, was born in Middletown, Conn., Nov. 22, 1851.

His father having died soon after his birth, he was brought up at the home of his mother's father, Mr. Lewis Bates, of Springfield, Mass. At the High School of that city he was fitted for college. He displayed early a remarkable capacity for patient and untiring labor, which, with the natural ability he possessed in no small measure, won for him the respect, often expressed, of his teachers and associates, and made him conspicuously the head of his class. This position of youthful dignity, as it then seemed, he filled unpretentiously, with a mature judgment of how much and how little it was worth. His schoolmates esteemed him a prodigy of learning, and were not repelled by any manifestation of self-conceit or by any arrogance of manner or assumption of superiority.

He was admitted to college at the first examination, in 1870. During the whole course he lived in Stoughton Hall, occupying, at different times, rooms 20, 16, and 11. He took no interest in any of the athletic sports, or perhaps it would be more correct to say, his interest was purely of a sympathetic sort,—he was interested only because his friends were interested. He applied himself to the curriculum with sufficient steadiness to obtain at the first, and keep during each of the four years, a very high rank in the class. Outside of the regular course, he did much hard work in two quite different lines. Religious problems of all sorts, ranging from Tischendorf's criticism of the text of the New Testament to the most unconfined speculations, occupied much of his time and thoughts; but, perhaps, more was given to the study of business, politics, and practical affairs generally. For his leisure he sought for no other pleasure or amusement than what he found in an old book, a fine picture, or in conversation with one or two friends. In character he was upright, resolute, and self-reliant, and his influence, though not always generally apparent, was very extensive. He was one of those men who affect a few strongly, and through them, many. He belonged to the Y. X., Christian Brethren, Athenæum, H. H., and Φ. B. K. societies, and was one of the first editors of the Magenta.

In the spring of 1874 he caught a severe cold, which he never entirely threw off, and which developed unsuspected weakness in his constitution. This it was then too late to remedy by exercise and physical training, though he made the endeavour zealously. He passed the first two years after graduation at Woodstock, Vt., as a private tutor, and then entered the Harvard Law School. He died at Springfield, Feb. 23, 1878. During all this time he must have suffered intense pain continually, though this is a matter of inference from the statements of physicians and from the fact that he sometimes fell in a dead faint, for he never complained to any one, nor was he willing to answer questions about his health otherwise than in a pleasantly evasive manner. His great strength of will and the steadfastness with which he resisted disease made his friends believe that he would eventually recover, and it was not till he was dead that they gave up hope.

Aston's nature seemed to those of us who knew him intimately so pure, so firm, so true, that while we live we shall always cherish his memory.

S. B. C.

At a meeting of the Class, held in Boston, March 6, 1878, appropriate resolutions were passed to his memory, and a copy thereof sent to his mother and to each member of the Class.

FRANCIS EATON BABCOCK. The first year after graduation, travelled extensively in Europe; since then has resided in Boston, but has not been actively engaged in business; writes, May 3, 1880, as follows: "...Thinking good health a prerequisite to happiness, I spend more than half the year on a farm, with my brother, in Dudley, Mass. In the winter I busy myself with music, reading, and miscellaneous work."

WALTER BAKER. Received the degree of B.D. in June, 1877, upon the completion of the three years' course at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge; for the next three months took charge of the Church of the Messiah in Brooklyn, N. Y., during his brother's absence in Europe; then became chaplain at St. Luke's Hospital in New York City, where he has since remained, with the exception of the year from Nov. 1, 1878, when he was obliged to rest at St. John's-land, L. I., on account of sickness; passed five months of 1876 in Europe; in 1879 published a "Hand-Book for Visitors of the Sick" (310 pages).

WILLIAM HOWARD BAKER. Passed eighteen months after graduation in Europe, one year of which was spent in Heidelberg, Germany, attending law lectures; on his return to his home in Philadelphia he entered a law office, and also attended the full course of lectures on law at the Pennsylvania University; June 30, 1877, was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar, and has since been practising law in that city, having an office at 524 Walnut Street; Aug. 22, 1877, was married in Philadelphia to Mary Morton Stephens.

CHARLES PARKER BANCROFT. Studied medicine for three years at the Harvard Medicine School; received degree of M.D. in June, 1878, after an eighteen months' service as "interne" at the City Hospital in Boston; in 1877 was elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society; Aug. 1, 1878, was appointed assistant physician at the N. H. Asylum for the Insane at Concord; remained there until May 12, 1879, when he received appointment as a physician in the Boston Dispensary, and is now in the general practice of medicine at 300 Shawmut Avenue, Boston.

HARRY HUDSON BARRETT. In the fall of 1874 returned to Cambridge, and began the study of law at the Harvard Law School, where he remained until June, 1879; during the summer of 1878 was also a student in the law office of Hon. E. R. Hoar, in Boston, and is now in the law office of Stearns & Butler, at 194 Washington Street, Boston; resides in Malden, Mass.

GIORGIO ANACLETO CORRADO BENDELARI. Studied law at the Harvard Law School the first year after graduation, also during the year taking charge for a short time of Professor Nash's classes in Italian and Spanish; in June, 1875, was awarded the John Thornton Kirkland Fellowship in History for three years, and soon after went abroad to pursue his studies; his health giving way in the fall of 1877, his studies were interrupted, and he spent the winter of 1878 in Italy and the summer in Spain and in Paris, and returned home in September, 1878; since then has resided in Cambridge, and by appointment has been instructor in Italian, Spanish, and French in the College during the past two years.

THOMAS SIMMS BETTENS. The first year after graduation received the Harris Fellowship, and pursued a course of study in the Modern Languages in Cambridge, receiving the degree of A.M. in June, 1875; the next three years taught Greek and History at Lake Forest Academy, in Illinois; since September, 1878, has taught Latin and Greek at the private school of Arthur H. Cutler (Harvard, 1870), in New York City.

WOODBURY BLAIR. Was at the Harvard Law School the first year after graduation; from Aug. 1, 1875, studied law in Washington, D. C., and was admitted to the bar Nov. 11, 1875, after examination; since then has been practising law with his father, Hon. Montgomery Blair, now having their office at 611 F Street, Washington, D. C.

GEORGE ANDREW BLANEY. In September, 1875, entered the Harvard Law School, and received the degree of LL.B. upon graduation in June, 1877; in the following October went into the law office of Charles Robinson, Jr., Esq., Boston, as a student; May 11, 1878, after examination, was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, since which time has been practising his profession in connection with Mr. Robinson at 82 Devonshire Street, Boston; June 2, 1880, was married in Woburn, Mass., to Ella A. Fowle.

ERASTUS BRAINERD. From October, 1874, until April, 1878, was with James R. Osgood & Co., publishers, in Boston, for which firm he prepared several books; from June, 1876, to March, 1877, was also curator of the Gray Collection of Engravings; May 9, 1878, sailed for England, and engaged there in a speculation, which was not successful; then became manager of W. Irving Bishop, a lecturing showman, in which position he remained until August, 1879, when he returned to New York; Oct. 5, 1879, joined the staff of "N. Y. World" as reporter, and shortly afterwards was promoted to assistant night editor;

Dec. 1, 1879, accepted an offer from the proprietors of the "Philadelphia Press" to join that paper, where he has since remained, and is now literary, foreign, dramatic, and fine arts editor.

JOHN WINTERS BRANNAN. Completed the three years' course at the Harvard Medical School, receiving the degree of M.D. in June, 1878, after one year's service as surgical house pupil at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston; in June, 1878, was elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society; passed the next year in Europe in the study of medicine, at Vienna, Paris, and Strasburg; then returned to Boston, and for the past year has been practising medicine in that city, having an office at 8 Park Square.

GEORGE RUSSELL BRIGGS. During the year 1874-75 was a student at the Lawrence Scientific School; since then has been tutor in mathematics in the Academical Department of the University, and is ex officio a member of the faculty; his second appointment as tutor was for three years from Sept. 1, 1878.

JOHN CHAPIN BRINSMADE. Since graduation has been assistant teacher at the boarding school in Washington, Conn., known as the "Gunnery," of which Frederick W. Gunn (Yale, 1837) is master: Oct. 4, 1876, at Washington, Conn., was married to Mary Gold Gunn; was a delegate to the Republican State Convention in Connecticut in April last, which chose delegates to the National Republican Convention at Chicago.

ALEXANDER PORTER BROWNE. In the fall of 1874 entered the Harvard Law School, and received the degree of LL.B. upon graduation, June 28, 1876; Oct. 27, 1876, was admitted to the Suffolk Bar after examination; Oct. 30, 1877, was admitted to the bar of the United States Circuit Court for the District of Massachusetts; is now residing in Boston and practising his profession, being the junior partner in the firm of Browne, Holmes & Browne, 82 Water Street, Boston, and Browne & Witter, 32 Park Place, New York; has been largely engaged for the past two years in preparing the 4th edition, lately published, of "Browne on the Statute of Frauds," by his father, Causten Browne, Esq.

CHARLES THOMAS BUFFUM. Studied medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, until March 1, 1877, when he received the degree of M.D. upon graduation; was then, after examination, appointed on the surgical staff at the Roosevelt Hospital, in New York City, where he remained for eighteen months; passed the next year and a half in Europe, pursuing his medical studies in Vienna, Paris, and London; since February, 1880, has been practising his profession in New York City, having an office at 12 East 28th Street.

HENRY MORGAN BURDETT. In July, 1874, went into the office of his father, senior member of the firm of Burdett & Pond, commission merchants, at 174 Water Street, New York City, where he has since remained; is a member of 7th Regiment National Guard of New York.

WILLIAM APPLETON BURNHAM. During the first year after graduation attended lectures at the Harvard Law School; the next year took a course in architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in Boston, and in August, 1876, went to Europe to study architecture; in May, 1877, passed the examination for entrance to the École Nationale des Beaux Arts; remained in Europe until October, 1879, when he returned to Boston, where he now resides; June 4, 1879, was married in Paris to Alice Munroe, daughter of the late John Munroe, of Paris.

WILLIAM BURRY. Began the study of law, soon after graduation, in the office of Hon. Leonard Swett, in Chicago, Ill.; in September, 1875, was admitted to the Illinois Bar, and has since been practising law in the office of Isham & Lincoln, at 38 Honoré Building, Chicago.

JAMES JACKSON CABOT. Died in Boston, Mass., June 13, 1875.
See first triennial report.

THOMAS CARY. Was admitted to the New York Bar, June, 1876; received the degree of LL.B. at Hamilton College in 1876, and at Columbia in 1877; was also, during the winter of 1876-77, in the law office of Emott, Burnett & Hammond, in New York City; has since been practising law in Buffalo, N.Y., at Room 4, Arcade; has been an active member of the Buffalo Polo Club since its organization in 1877, and for two terms its secretary; has been interested in political and charitable work in Buffalo, and writes May 24, 1880: . . . "In politics I have been a Municipal Reformer (1877), a Scratcher (1879), and an Independent Republican, in each of which roles I have succeeded in being thoroughly beaten by the machine in the caucus and at the polls. My journeyings have consisted in navigating the Mississippi and Great Lakes (1876), in railroading north from New Orleans along the coast (1878), and in walking from New York to Albany."

EDWARD WARREN CATE. During the Senior year in College attended the first year's lectures at the Harvard Law School, and received the degree of LL.B., June 30, 1875, upon the completion of the course at that school; the next year, 1875-76, was engaged in teaching, and during the year 1877-78, in connection with his other work gave instruction at the Hillside School in Newton, Mass.; in June, 1876, was appointed by Gov. Rice, clerk of Newton Police Court, and in the fall of 1876, was elected by the people of Newton to the same position for the term of five years; July 8, 1878, was admitted to the bar in Middlesex County, after examination, and in December, 1878, opened a law office with D. L. Withington, under the firm name of Withington & Cate, at 39 Court Street, Boston, where he has since remained; has made two journeys to Colorado, and the past year was elected to represent Ward 1, in the Common Council of Newton, where he has resided since graduation.

GEORGE HERBERT CATE. Studied law at his home in Wolfeboro', N.H., and also assisted his father in his business, the first year after graduation; then entered the Yale Theological Seminary, at New Haven, Conn., from which he was graduated in May, 1878, with the degree of B.D.; in May, 1877, was licensed to preach by the New Haven West Association, and spent the following summer at Markesan, Wis., preaching to the Congregational Church in that place; March 1, 1878, accepted the call to supply the pulpit of the Congregational Church in Essex, Conn., and April 1, 1879, was ordained and installed as pastor over the same church, which position he still holds; expects to pass the coming year in Europe, in study and travel.

HENRY ARNOTT CHISHOLM. Was in business in Newark, N. J., for some months after graduation; has since resided in Cleveland, Ohio, and was engaged in the manufacture of steel by the "Siemen Martin" process, with the Cleveland Rolling Mill, until Jan. 1, 1878, when he became one of the partners in the firm of William Chisholm & Sons, manufacturers and proprietors of Cleveland Shovel Works, of which he is also Superintendent; Dec. 27, 1877, was married in Boston, to Gertrude Tozier; March 27, 1879, Andrew Tozier Chisholm was born.

ARTHUR BLAKE CLAPP. In July, 1874, began the study of law in the office of Edward P. Brown, Esq., in Boston; in April, 1879, was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, and has since been practising law in connection with Mr. Brown, having an office in the Equitable Building, 150 Devonshire Street, Boston; is a justice of the peace and notary public; is now residing at 16 Concord Square, Boston.

HENRY ALDEN CLARK. In the fall of 1875 entered the Harvard Law School, and upon graduation, June 27, 1877, received the degree of LL.B.; soon afterwards went to Fall River, Mass., and entered the law office of Jonathan M. Wood, Esq., as a student; in December, 1877, passed the examinations for admission to the bar, and was admitted in March following; from Feb. 1, 1878, to Feb. 22, 1879, was in partnership with Mr. Wood, under the firm name of Wood & Clark; since then has been practising law on his own account in Fall River, having an office in Granite Block; July 18, 1878, was married at Erie, Pa., to Sophia McCreary; in connection with Vaille, published "The Harvard Book," and subsequently, with C. F. Richardson as his associate, published "The College Book."

LOUIS CRAWFORD CLARK. From October, 1874, to January, 1876, was Secretary of the Goodenough Horse-shoe Company, in New York City; studied law at the Columbia College Law School from January, 1876, until the close of the term; since October, 1876, has been with Clark, Dodge, & Co., bankers and brokers, at 51 Wall Street, New York City, of which firm he is now a member; April 6, 1880, was married in New York City to Marie Cannon. (No report since 1877.)

CHARLES CECIL CLARKE. Has been since graduation in the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service; was for a few months at Shanghai, then at Hankow until May, 1878, when he was transferred to Wuhu, where he remains at present, but expects to be removed shortly to another port; will be home in the spring of 1882; writes Jan. 22, 1880, as follows: "... My blood was stirred by an account of winning cups in athletic sports which I saw in the last report. I have tried hard to distinguish myself, but my efforts have been in vain. There are not enough of us for a single side at cricket or base ball. If we tried pair-oar racing, there would be nobody left for judge or starter. In a four-oar we should have to row against time, and time gives no prizes. We dare not trust our single sculls. My hopes of glory lie in a transfer to another port."

SAMUEL BELCHER CLARKE. Entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1874, from which he was graduated, June 28, 1876, receiving the degree of LL.B.; was proctor at the college during the year 1875-76; in August, 1876, at Greenfield, Mass., after examination, was admitted to practise in the courts of the State; was in the law office of Evarts, Southmayd, & Choate, in New York City, for a few months following; Feb. 7, 1877, went into the office of Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, where he has since remained; in May, 1877, was admitted to the New York Bar, and in October following was appointed an Assistant United States Attorney, which position he still holds; has had charge of many important government cases, among which was the Income Tax suit against Hon. Samuel J. Tilden; Aug. 27, 1879, was married at Branford, Conn., to Sarah Louise Rogers.

ARTHUR CLIFFORD. Studied medicine the first year and most of the third year succeeding graduation, at the Harvard Medical School; also studied during this time at Winchendon, Mass., with Dr. Ira Russell; in November, 1877, received the degree of M.D., from Dartmouth College; then pursued, for two winters, the regular courses at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in New York City, where he received an appointment as clinical assistant; visited the hospitals and dispensaries in New York City, while engaged in his studies, and took a special course of study in diagnosis with Dr. Alfred Loomis, receiving a diploma from him for proficiency in Physical Diagnosis; in June, 1879, after due examination, was admitted a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and of the Worcester Northern District Society; in July, 1879, took the office and practice of Dr. C. D. Stickney, in New Bedford, Mass., while he was absent in pursuit of health, and has retained the same office and practice since that time; is a member of the New Bedford Society for Medical Improvement, and of the Bristol South District Medical Society, of which latter society he is to be orator at their meeting this year; has occasionally, since graduation, contributed short articles to the Winchendon and New Bedford papers; Feb. 5, 1880, was married at Detroit, Mich., to Kate E. Writes, April 16, 1880, as follows: ". . . I found the University in remarkably fine condition, considering that the country had so lately emerged from what must be termed, at least relatively speaking, a state of profound ignorance. Some two hundred students were at work in the special elective courses, reading English books, and speaking and writing that language fluently. A finer set of young men, or more earnest workers and keener thinkers, cannot, I venture to say, be found in any university in the world. The standard of scholarship is high, sixty per cent being required as a minimum average mark necessary to secure promotion at the end of each term. . . . During the first year my work consisted of three courses of lectures, one on the History of Philosophy, one on Political Economy, and one on Political Philosophy. I had an attentive audience in a class of eight special students, who I soon found were by no means to be despised as antagonists at dialectics. This second year I have had, in addition to the repetition of these three courses, two additional advanced courses with my old class, one in Political Economy and one in Political Philosophy; altogether I have now fifteen hours a week of lectures."

EDWARD MORTIMER FERRIS. Took a special course in physics at the Institute of Technology, in Boston, for a few months after graduation; in the spring of 1875, went to San Francisco, looking for a business opening; in September, 1875, entered the Harvard Medical School, from which he was graduated, June 26, 1878, receiving the degree of M.D.; passed the next year in Europe, travelling, and studying

CHARLES FRANKLIN KNOWLES, the only son of Nathaniel and Tamzen (Linnell) Knowles, was born in Boston, Aug. 8, 1852.

He attended the Brimmer School in Boston, and received a medal at graduation. In 1866 he entered the Boston Latin School, from which he was graduated with high rank in 1870, and he was admitted to college without conditions.

The story of his college life is still fresh in our minds. His quick perception and remarkably retentive memory enabled him to pursue with success the studies to which he devoted himself; and his genial manner and quiet modesty won for him many warm friends. In 1871 he became a member of Emanuel (Episcopal) Church in Boston.

In the autumn after graduation he entered the banking-house of E. D. Bangs & Co., and for three years faithfully devoted himself to his responsible duties. Early in 1878, while making arrangements to begin the banking business in his own name, failing health led him to go to Colorado, where he thought of devoting himself to husbandry; but his love of home and friends was too strong to suffer separation from them, and he returned to Boston in December, much benefited in general health. Soon after his return he underwent a surgical operation, which confined him to the house for several months. The summer found him much improved; but in the autumn he decided to postpone his business plans and spend a year in Europe. He had engaged passage, and was to sail in December, but before the day arrived he was unable to proceed. He rallied several times, and his friends were hopeful of his recovery; but gradually his strength failed, and he died a peaceful, painless death the 29th February, 1880.

During his sickness he was very patient and hopeful. His great faith and firm belief in the wisdom, goodness, and mercy of God strengthened and comforted him during his last days on earth. His funeral service was read in Emanuel Church in Boston; his body lies in Forest Hills.

C. M. G.

EDWIN GARRALD MERRIAM. During the Senior year attended lectures at the Harvard Law School, and in September, 1874, entered upon the second year's course at that school, graduating June 30, 1875, with the degree of LL.B.; in the autumn of 1875 went to St. Louis, to pursue his profession; writes May 15, 1880: "I was not enrolled as a member of bar until May, 1878, up to which time my pursuits were exclusively of a business and mercantile character. Since the above date I have been engaged entirely in legal writing. I have assisted in the preparation of works by Seymour D. Thompson, Esq., on the following subjects: 'The Liability of Stockholders' and 'The Law of Negligence.' I am at present engaged upon other works by the same author, now in press. I have occasionally contributed articles to the 'Southern Law Review' and 'Central Law Journal.'" Oct. 1, 1879, was married in St. Louis to Ruth Maria Josephine Graham.

HENRY FERDINAND MERRILL. Since graduation has been in the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service; March 13, 1880, writes: "... I was in Kiukiang, up the Yangtse River, from the time of my arrival in China until June, 1876, when I was transferred to Takow, where I remained until April, 1878. Since the latter date I have been in Amoy. I may be sent away any time, but expect to remain here another year. My life in China has been very pleasant, there being plenty of good society (in the larger ports) and many ways of passing the time out of office hours. Every port has its club, the one here being a very good one, with library, reading room, billiards, etc., and a theatre attached, where we have frequent performances by the Amateur Dramatic Corps. I ride, play racquet, have plenty of tennis with the ladies, and in the summer, when it is too hot for anything else, have daily swimming in the sea. I have won two cups at swimming races. The climate of Amoy is delightful. The summers, though long and pretty hot, are not unhealthy, because we have generally a fresh breeze from the sea. The winter weather is much like early October at home, and just now we are having such weather as you have in May. . . . I have not seen Clarke for four years, but Spinney and I have been near each other, and we have visited each other several times."

HENRY CHILDS MERWIN. During the year 1874-75 was at the Harvard Law School; then continued his studies in the law office of his father, Elias Merwin, Esq., 40 State Street, Boston; in April, 1877, after examination, was admitted to the bar, and has since been engaged in his profession at the above office in Boston.

EDMUND HAMILTON SEARS. During the year 1874-75 was teacher at a school for colored people, in Hampton, Va.; since the fall of 1875 has been instructor in the classics in the University of California, at Oakland, Cal.; writes, "The statements published under my name in the first triennial report, continue to be, in the main, correct. But by the new Constitution some changes for the better have been made in the school system, so that men well-educated, but not masters of the petty details of inferior elementary text-books, seem likely to secure positions as teachers more easily. It is hardly necessary to state, what every one knows, that the new Constitution has crippled business energy so badly that California offers almost no inducements to new-comers, be they of the best or of the lowest class."

THEODORE LOVETT SEWALL. In the fall of 1874 entered the Harvard Law School, and was graduated therefrom June 28, 1876, receiving the degree of LL.B.; Sept. 25, 1876, opened a classical school in Indianapolis, Ind.; January, 1877, was joined by W. Left College at the end of Sophomore year; studied for some time in Chicago, Ill., and established himself as an artist in that city; writes May 14, 1880, as follows: "Left Chicago for Virginia City, Nev., March 16, 1878. Practised my profession at that place for six months. Spent the winter at the State capitol, in Carson, holding the position of chief clerk of committee of the Nevada Senate. In April went to Sutro, and during the building of the sub-drain was storekeeper for the Sutro Tunnel Company. July 18, 1879, went to California, and soon afterwards joined the anti-sand-lot, anti-railroad party, organized by Charles De Young. Aug. 6, 1879, entered on a campaign through the northern part of the State, stumping some fifteen counties. Upon the failure of the party at the election of Sept. 3, 1879, I obtained temporary work in the local department of the 'San Francisco Chronicle.' . . . Since Dec. 1, 1879, have been a clerk in the Palace Hotel, in San Francisco."

DANIEL BECHTEL YOUNG. Left the class at the close of the Sophomore year; studied law for three years in his father's office, in Reading, Pa.; Jan. 10, 1876, was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania, and practised law for a time in Reading; then removed to Chicago, Ill., where he has since been engaged in his profession, having an office in Major Block, Room 49, in that city; is a subscriber to the class fund. (No report since 1877.)

CLASS FUND.

The subscriptions to the Class Fund have been as follows:—

1 subscription of	$300.00	$300.00
4 " 	200.00	800.00
2 " 	150.00	300.00
32 " 	100.00	3,200.00
3 " 	75.00	225.00
56 " 	50.00	2,800.00
30 " 	25.00	750.00
1 " 	20.00	20.00
129		$8,395.00

These subscriptions were payable in five yearly instalments, the last instalment being due two years ago. The amounts severally received and unpaid of the several instalments are as follows:—

	Amount received.	Amount due and unpaid.
First instalment	$1,654.00	$25.00
Second " 	1,624.00	55.00
Third " 	1,549.00	130.00
Fourth " 	1,484.00	195.00
Fifth " 	1,439.00	240 00
	$7,750.00	$645.00

Single subscriptions (four) 35.00

Total received from subscriptions $7,785.00

The money was deposited in savings banks as received, and remained there until the spring of 1878, when, on account of the anxiety felt by the depositors in many of the Boston savings banks, the Class money was mostly withdrawn, and after careful inquiries, and with a view to the greatest security, the money was invested in United States government bonds, which, with a railroad bond, subsequently purchased on the strong recommendation of those presumed to be informed, are the securities now owned by the Class. The Home Savings Bank, taking advantage of the Massachusetts "stay-law," has paid but 20 per cent of their deposits, but assurances are given by the bank officers that the principal will soon be paid in full. In this event, the Class will lose only the interest on this deposit. The statement of this fund, at the end of the report, will give further detailed information.

CLASS SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

The subscriptions to the Class Subscription Fund have been as follows :—

2	subscriptions of	$200.00	$400 00
2	„	100.00	200.00
17	„	50.00	850.00
21			$1,450.00

These subscriptions are payable in ten yearly instalments, the sixth instalment being due this year. The amounts severally received and unpaid of the instalments are as follows :—

	Amount received.	Amount due and unpaid.
First instalment	$120.00	$25.00
Second „	115.00	30.00
Third „	85.00	60.00
Fourth „	80.00	65.00
Fifth „	75.00	70.00
Sixth „	65.00	80.00
	$540.00	$330.00
Received balance in full of eight subscriptions	200.00
Total received	$740.00

There has been paid over to the committee of the Alumni, having charge of this fund, the sum of $734.00, as appears more fully from the statement at the end of this report. The amount subscribed is very small, as compared with what other classes before and after us have done, and those who have not pledged themselves to contribute to this fund need not be surprised if an appeal should be made to them; and such an appeal, if made, ought now to meet with a generous response. If no further effort should be made by the committee of the Alumni to obtain subscriptions to this fund, the Class, in a few years, might desire to contribute enough to place a stained-glass window in Memorial Hall, as has been done by some of the older classes; such a gift would benefit the College and be a satisfaction to ourselves.

REPORTS OF MEETINGS.

FIRST MEETING, Nov. 17, 1874.

The meeting was held at the Parker House, Boston, in accordance with the call of the Secretary, to take action on the death of our classmate, William Samuel Eliot.

The meeting was called to order by the Secretary at 12.15 p. m., and R. H. Dana was called to the chair. On motion of H. R. Grant, a committee, consisting of H. R. Grant, H. L. Morse, and Wigglesworth, was appointed by the chairman to prepare resolutions to the memory of our deceased classmate. The resolutions as presented by the committee were unanimously adopted, and were as follows: — *

It was then voted, on motion of Merwin, That a copy of the above resolutions be sent to the parents of our deceased classmate, and also to the College papers for publication; but that, instead of printing the resolutions in the daily papers, that a notice of the meeting and its proceedings should only be published therein.

The death of our classmate, Nicholas Reed, was then announced; and, on motion of Coale, the chairman appointed a committee, consisting of Coale, Patton, and H. Richards, to draft a series of resolutions to his memory. The Secretary was instructed to forward these resolutions to the widow of our deceased classmate, the resolutions to be formally presented and accepted at the next meeting of the Class.

It was voted that upon adjournment the meeting attend the funeral of W. S. Eliot, at Emanuel Church, in Boston.

SECOND MEETING, June 16, 1875.

The meeting was held at the Parker House, Boston, in accordance with the call of the Secretary, to pay respect to the memory of our late classmate, James Jackson Cabot.

The meeting was called to order by the Secretary at 12.15 p. m., and Goodwin was called to the chair. On motion of H. L. Morse, a committee, consisting of H. L. Morse, Cunningham, and Allen, was appointed by the chairman to prepare suitable resolutions to the memory of our late classmate. The resolutions as presented by the committee were unanimously adopted.

* [RESOLUTIONS.]

I have not deemed it necessary to print in the Report these Resolutions. A copy of them was sent to each member of the Class; and they may be seen in the Class-Book by any one desiring it.

The resolutions to the memory of our classmate, Nicholas Reed, prepared by the committee appointed at the last meeting of the Class, were adopted.

On motion of H. L. Morse, it was voted, That the resolutions adopted at this and at the previous meeting be printed, and forwarded by the Secretary to each member of the Class.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

THIRD MEETING, June 30, 1875.

This was the annual Commencement meeting, and was held at Holworthy 4, and was called to order at 12 M.

The Secretary's report of the finances of the Class was read and accepted.

The action of the Secretary in the disposition of the Class Cradle Fund was approved by the meeting.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

FOURTH MEETING, June 22, 1876.

The meeting was held at the Parker House, Boston, in accordance with the call of the Secretary, to take appropriate action on the death of our late classmate, Henry Houghton Williams. The meeting was called to order by the Secretary at 3.20 P. M., and G. W. White was called to the chair.

On motion of Merwin, it was voted, That, instead of the usual resolutions adopted by the Class, a letter of condolence be prepared by a committee, and forwarded to the parents of our deceased classmate. Merwin, Woodward, and Hill were then appointed by the chairman to constitute that committee, and the letter as presented by them was adopted by the meeting.

Remarks were then made by the chairman and Hill, Coale, and D. L. Withington, eulogizing the character of the deceased.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

FIFTH MEETING, June 28, 1876.

This was the annual Commencement meeting, and was held at Holworthy 4, and was called to order at 12 M.

The Secretary's report of the finances was then read; and a committee, consisting of Minot, Penhallow, and W. R. Tyler, were appointed to examine the accounts of the Secretary, to approve the same if found correct, and to report their action at the next meeting of the Class.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

TRIENNIAL DINNER, June 26, 1877.

The first triennial dinner took place at the American House, in Boston, on the evening of June 26, 1877. McMillan presided. Peters was toast-master, and Foote, chorister. 110 were present, including 12 former members of the Class, and the occasion was highly enjoyable.

SIXTH MEETING, June 27, 1877.

This was the annual Commencement meeting, and was held at Holworthy 4, and was called to order at 12 M.

The Class Secretary formally presented his second printed report, which was accepted.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

SEVENTH MEETING, March 7, 1878.

The meeting was held at the office of the Secretary, 140 Tremont Street, Boston, in answer to his call, to take action on the death of our late classmate, Eugene Nelson Astor. The meeting was called to order at 4.10 P. M., and Green was appointed chairman.

On motion of Lawton, a committee consisting of Lawton, Keith, and Joy, was appointed by the chair, to prepare suitable resolutions to be presented to the meeting, and the resolutions when presented by the chairman of the committee, with brief remarks, were adopted.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

EIGHTH MEETING, June 26, 1878.

This was the annual Commencement meeting, and was held at Holworthy 4, and was called to order at 12 M.

The Secretary's report of the Class finances was read and accepted.

A circular, which had been sent by a committee of the Alumni to the Class Secretary, with regard to the usual observance of Commencement Day by the classes, was brought to the attention of the Class. Upon the statement of the Class Secretary that a meeting of the several secretaries of the classes since 1870 had been held, and certain recommendations and suggestions had been made by them and embodied in a circular, sent to each member of the classes represented at the meeting, it was laid on the table.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

NINTH MEETING, June 25, 1879.

This was the annual Commencement meeting, and was held at Holworthy 4, and was called to order at 12 M.

The Secretary's report of the finances of the Class was then read; and a committee, consisting of A. G. Hodges, Browne, and Wendell, was appointed to examine the books and accounts of the Class Secretary, to approve the same if found correct, and to report their action at the meeting of the Class, on Commencement Day, next year.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.

TENTH MEETING, March 2, 1880.

The meeting was held at the office of the Secretary, 140 Tremont Street, Boston, in accordance with his call, to pay respect to the memory of our late classmate, Charles Franklin Knowles. The meeting was called to order at 4.10 P. M., and Coale was called to the chair.

After some discussion as to the action to be taken by the meeting, on motion of Green, the chairman appointed a committee, consisting of Green, Penhallow, and Blaney, to prepare resolutions to be presented to the meeting. The report of the committee was accepted, and the Secretary was instructed to send a copy of the resolutions to each member of the Class, and to the parents of the deceased. The Secretary was also requested, by a vote of the meeting, to send suitable flowers to the church on the day of the funeral.

Brief remarks were then made on the character and life of the deceased, by Green, Coale, and Southworth.

Adjourned.

GEORGE P. SANGER, JR., Secretary.
